

RSVP Case Study By

Patibandla Manogna
Viet Hoang Nguyen
Mahendrakumar Khiani

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY AND RECOMMENDATIONS

This analysis of the IMDb dataset for RSVP movies reveals valuable insights for strategic decision-making in upcoming productions. Some of the key insights include:

- Production Trends: The data indicates a decline in overall movie production, notably peaking in March. This insight suggests a strategic avoidance of releasing movies in March to mitigate competitive pressures.
- Genre Preferences: Drama emerges as the most prominent genre, boasting 4285 movies with an average runtime of 106.77 minutes. Coupled with the popularity of the Action and Thriller genres, this suggests a potential focus for our next production.
- Key Production Entities: Dream Warrior Pictures and National Theatre Live stand out as noteworthy production companies, credited with successful film outputs. Additionally, Marvel Studios, Twentieth Century Fox, and Warner Bros present opportunities for potential global partnerships based on the popularity of their movies.
- Multilingual Audience Reach: Star Cinema and Twentieth Century Fox excel in producing multilingual movies, making them strong candidates for future projects aimed at a global audience.
- Director and Cast Considerations: James Mangold, renowned for directing successful movies in top genres, could be a valuable addition as the director for our next project. Additionally, considering casts for pivotal roles, Mammooty, Mohanlal, Parvathy Thiruvothu, Andrew Garfield, Vijay Sethupathi, and Taapsee Pannu emerge as potential actors and actresses, each with notable track records and audience appeal across various markets.